

Do Price Lists have standard charging?

15/05/2025 2:25 pm BST

Yes, most products on the price lists have standard charging structures that were set when we received the price lists. When selecting a product, the default charge for that product will appear. If you are offering a discount, override the price by typing in the per unit cost. This field is manual, and any discount will need to be calculated before entering the value. In the future we hope to be able to pull through the default charge and calculate the discount on the system.
